MANY CHARGES FALLING FLAT

Records Don't Sustain Claims of Marker.

DENMAN CONTINUES THE INVESTIGATION

Marker Fails To Furnish Data Needed.

In Six Charges Filed Against Former Engineer Perkins Marker Only Gives One Exact Date and Records Show That Perkins Pays No State Money to Men Who Do Work for Him as Claimed by Marker

Columbus, O., Oct. 20.—Some of the charges made against Republican officials by James R. Marker, Governor Harmon's chief engineer of public works, have fallen flat.

The investigation of his charges alleging grafting showed that those alleging that no money had been turned in for the sale of junk on the southern division of the canal by Charles W. Watkins, collector at Waverly, to be without basis.

The records show that the money for the sale of this stuff was turned into the state.

Another weakness of the charges is that they are not supported by a single sworn statement. It was supposed that behind every charge there would be an affidavit, but not a single affidavit has been produced.

There are six charges of a minor nature against Charles E. Perkins, former chief engineer. These charges are indefinite.

One of the charges is that Perkins had some work done at his residence by men employed by the state in October, 1907. No names are given of the men supposed to have done this work and no dates are given as to when it was performed.

It is understood Perkins can show that the men drew no pay from the state for the days on which they made repairs for him.

This charge would not stand in court two minutes unless backed up by more tangible evidence.

The records show that no money was paid the workmen by the state for the days which Marker claims the workmen were engaged in working for Perkins.

Another indefinite charge is that Perkins had some firewood hauled to his house in 1907. No specific or approximate dates are given as to when this took place or by whom.

This charge would not stand in court two minutes. It is not backed up by proof.

Marker charges that men employed by the state built a fence for Perkins on July 21 and 22, 1908. The investigation of the records in the auditor of state's office clears Perkins from any wrongdoing in this instance.

Campaign Thunder

The men who did the work for Perkins then did not draw pay from the state for the period that they were working for Perkins.

Specific dates were given about this transaction and so Attorney General Denman was able to find the state records covering the time and the men for that period and these records showed the men got nothing from the state.

Another charge is that Perkins had fertilizer belonging to the state hauled to his home. It is declared that Perkins got this fertilizer from a man who did teaming for the state and that the fertilizer was his own property. In most places fertilizer is given away for nothing to those who will have it hauled away.

Another charge against Perkins is that state employes erected a windmill for Perkins. No names are given, neither are there dates of any kind specified, which is certainly [illegible] basis for such a charge.

Another charge is that evidence [illegible] to show that 100 oak posts [illegible] hauled to Perkins home at state expense. It is not charged [illegible] the posts belonged to the [illegible]. Not even the year is given when this was done.

[illegible] charges against Perkins are [illegible] and so vague and [illegible] in support as to seem to [illegible] of consideration.

[illegible] has always been looked [illegible] the soul of honor by all [illegible] had any dealings with [illegible] they are confident that the [illegible] will show that he is [illegible] victim of a political plot to [illegible] Democratic campaign thunder.

A RECEIVER FOR CHANLER ESTATE

"Sheriff Bob" and Singer Requested to Appear in Court

New York, Oct. 20.—An order was issued yesterday by Justice Newburger in the Supreme court directing Robert W. Chanler, his wife, Lina Cavalieri, and the trustees of the Chanler estate to appear in court Friday and show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the estate. This action, it is thought, will disclose the condition of Chanler's estate and is an important point scored by Mrs. Julia Chamberlain Chanler, "Sheriff Bob's" first wife, in her fight to prevent Chanler's antenuptial agreement with Cavalieri from being carried out.

The first Mrs. Chanler is seeking to keep the estate intact to protect her alimony award of $20,000 a year.

INGENIOUS CITIZEN WANTS BIG POSITION

New Yorker Would Like To Be Made Postmaster General

Washington, Oct. 20.—An ingenious [illegible] of the late O. Henry's [illegible] Town on the Hudson—New York City—has applied for appointment as postmaster general. He wrote to Frank H. Hitchcock saying he had heard that Hitchcock might retire and announcing his willingness to take the job. In conclusion he said:

"Kindly send me information as to the wages paid the postmaster general and the educational qualifications required to pass the civil service examination for that place."

SIX WORKMEN BLOWN TO BITS

When Big Boiler Explodes in New York

SCORE OF OTHERS SERIOUSLY HURT

Explosion Causes a Panic Among Employes

When Boiler Lets Go, Tearing Through Walls of Building and Hurling Mutilated Bodies Over a Block—2,500 Men, Women and Girls Stampede for the Exits—Dead Men Are Machinists

New York, Oct. 20.—Six men were blown to bits, two were fatally injured and a score or more seriously hurt when a big ten-ton boiler exploded today in the plant of the American Manufacturing company, a jute concern at Green Point, Long Island.

When the huge boiler let go, tearing through the walls of the building and hurling mutilated bodies over a block, 2,500 employes in the building stampeded for the exits.

Two thousand of the employes were women and girls and they jammed the doorways and stairways, trampling upon each other in their panic-stricken effort to leave the building. There were a dozen men at work on the big boiler when it exploded.

Work had just begun for the day and the big jute factory was filled with employes. Without the least warning the big cylinder split like a bomb, hurling the workmen through the wrecked wall and driving four big cylinder heads up through three floors of the building.

All of the dead were machinists at work on the boiler. Three of them were blown through a side wall of the building and their bodies were found horribly mangled in the street. The others were found under the debris.

HARDING TALKS TO BIG CROWD

Berates Harmon as Hypocritical at Canton.

HARDING APPLIES SINCERITY TEST

To Governor's Accomplishments in State

Thousands March Streets of Canton Before Harding Makes His Address in Big Auditorium to Enthusiastic Throng—Says He Yields Deference and Devotion to No One Concerned in Grafting

Canton, O., Oct. 20.—The big auditorium which this city boasts, the scene of the Democratic campaign opening, held an enthusiastic throng of 4,000 when Candidate Harding rose to speak last night. In the parade which preceded the opening here there were probably 4,000 marchers and the streets were lined with people. At Massillon early last evening, where he wound up an automobile tour of the county, Harding addressed 2,000 hearers from the city hall steps.

After reviewing his charges that Governor Harmon was withholding important information as to canal graft charges for political exploitation in a late hour of the campaign, Harding called the roll of Democratic grafters in office now and concluded with the question: "Do you believe Governor Harmon has made good?"

"Yes," shouted a man far back in the crowd.

"Name me one," roared Harding. "Name one. I tell you he has not fired a single grafter from the state's service. I promise you that when I am governor I will clean house at Columbus and keep it clean. If you don't believe I mean what I say, don't vote for me. But don't cast your votes for the pretender and have two more years of nothing done."

Sincerity Test

It was in Canton that publicity was given to the deference and devotion utterance with which Governor Harmon has been assailing Harding. The latter took cognizance of the fact when he referred to it early in his speech.

"Governor Harmon," said Harding, "insists that I yield deference and devotion to George B. Cox in connection with alleged treasury abuse. Governor Harmon and other inquirers have learned by this time that I will not make of myself a political hypocrite to become governor of Ohio. But they have also learned that I do not yield deference and devotion to any man in connection with treasury or any other public abuses."

Taking up Governor Harmon's claim of participation in the drafting of the Langdon tax commission bill Harding said:

"Let's apply the sincerity test to Governor Harmon's part in new things accomplished in Ohio. In his utterance a few days ago in deliberate utterance Governor Harmon claimed that he himself contributed the good features of the Langdon tax commission law but excused his failure to sign it on the ground that it did not permit home authorities to name the city boards of review. He wanted mayors to name these boards instead of strange state officials, he said.

Harmon Forgets

"In this particular Governor Harmon is strangely forgetful. I will not say that he deliberately mis[illegible].

"Governor Harmon's bill for a state tax commission which was introduced by Senator Alsdorf and which Governor Harmon urged upon the general assembly lodged the appointment of these city boards of review with the tax commission, a strange state board which Governor Harmon himself was to name. I merely cite this indisputable fact that you may yourself pass judgment on Governor Harmon's sincerity.

"The best work of the tax commission created by the Langdon bill is founded upon its authority to apply the principles of the Nichols law in assessing all public service corporations to require them to pay taxes on their real value. Yet the Alsdorf bill which Governor Harmon says was his bill contained no such provision. And the governor's legislative representative tried to have the principles of the Nichols law stricken from the Langdon bill. In this particular the people of Ohio want to know whether Governor Harmon was representing them or the corporations.

"I charge that Governor Harmon is absolutely insincere in his claim that he withheld his signature from the Langdon tax bill because that bill did not provide for the lodging of the appointment of city boards of review in the hands of home officials. Harmon's own bill convicts him of insincerity. I call upon Governor Harmon to answer these questions to the people of Ohio:

"If you were sincere in your recommendation to the general assembly that the principles of the Nichols law be applied to the assessment of public service corporations why did you not write it into your tax commission bill which you admit you helped draft and proposed for passage?

"If you were sincere in your recommendation that city boards of review be appointed by the mayor thereof why did you not provide for this manner of appointment in your bill instead of attempting to lodge the appointment in a tax commission which you yourself would name and which would under the provisions of your bill be Democratic?"

"What about high prices?" cried a voice.

"Much obliged," cried Harding, "that is a question I like to answer. Prices are high and I'll tell you why."

Sorry Tangle

Harding then proceeded to defend at length the protective principle, declaring that the tariff has nothing to do with high prices.

Taking up Governor Harmon's latest defense of Labor Commissioner Warner, State Fire Marshal Zuber and Factory Inspector Kearns Harding said:

"This is the third time Governor Harmon has found excuse for these three men. I have been waiting for him to find excuse for the other wrongdoers—for Oil Inspector Finley and State Treasurer Creamer. Hasn't Governor Harmon got an excuse for these two also? Think of it. Governor Harmon excuses grafting on the ground of precedent. In other words if one has precedent, grafting is all right. And because Governor Harmon finds precedent for the grafting of his domestic grafters he retains them in office. Governor Harmon is indeed in a sorry tangle in his graft exploitation."

Havana, Oct. 20.—Although Key West is still cut off from communication with the other parts of the United States the cables to Cuba are working. Despatches received today by La Lucha announce that the principal damage done in Key West by the storm was to the shipping. The Norwegian steamer Fos is still stranded at Marquesas Bank. The captain of the liner refused to abandon his craft until he had received instructions from [illegible]. On the second floor the main drill hall 60x10[illegible] will occupy almost the entire floor. The front of this floor will be occupied by offices. The drill hall which will be the largest auditorium space in the city will be open to the public for all purposes such as dances, political meetings, etc.

The drill room will be two stories high with a gallery around the entire room. At the front of this gallery [illegible] the whole of the third floor will be rooms extending across the front of the building, which may be used by the Grand Army of the Republic and the Spanish American war veterans. Should these orders not wish to have their quarters on this floor an exception will be made under the front of the first floor and their rooms will be located in the basement. The entire building will be free for all military uses.

Marion is very badly in need of an armory building as the company has never had desirable quarters. The present quarters have none of the conveniences necessary to an organization of this kind and af[ford] no inducements to young men to become members of the company.

A great effort is being made by the captain and members of the [illegible] to interest the citizens of Marion in the proposition so that a desirable location may be donated for the purpose.

BIG PROBLEM PRESENTED TO AMERICA BY CHINESE

China Seeks Market in the United States.

WOULD COMPETE WITH AMERICAN MADE GOODS

Feeding the Army of Panama Canal Builders Is Big Task—People of Porto Rico Are Happy and Prosperous—The Usury Evil in United States May Be Checked

Washington Oct 19 — In place of the Chinese labor problem which was settled by the exclusion of coolies a new problem now is presented by the appearance of the products of such labor made in China seeking admission to the American markets.

Coal, coke, fire brick, cement and tile produced under labor conditions existing in China are offered in San Francisco in competition with American products. Success there means an invasion of the entire coast from Seattle to San Diego.

In an effort to establish a market a Chinese mining company has landed in San Francisco a cargo of coal comprising anthracite 2,000 tons, lump 320 tons, slack, 1,980 tons and special coke, five tons. Ten casks of cement were sent along for testing purposes by American users of that material.

A representative of the company which is under foreign management and one of the strongest industrial concerns in China, has been sent to this country to work up the trade. The concern with others has extended its production beyond the home demand in China and thus the largest company in the business looks to the United States to take its surplus. The capacity of its mines is 1,9[illegible]7,200 tons a year or 5,500 tons a day. It has over 9,000,000 tons of coal in sight and its total resources are estimated at [illegible]0,000,000 tons. The output last year amounted to 1,361,[illegible]0 tons.

Evidence Produced

Five other companies in China produced 600,000 tons of anthracite coal last year. The Germans in Shantung and the Japanese in Manchuria are also developing coal deposits.

United States Consul Knabenshue at Tientsin, estimates that within ten years if foreign markets are found China and Manchuria will be exporting 2,000,000 tons of coal a year.

The big coal company mentioned is interested also in the manufacture of cement, fire brick, fire clay and ornamental tiles for which it is seeking entrance to the United States. Knabenshue expressed the opinion that with the low cost of production in China and the cheap ocean freights they will be able to offer dangerous competition on the coast and in the Philippines.

Evidence that China is preparing to compete in the markets of the world is afforded by the fact that in the present year a steel corporation on the Pacific coast of the United States contracted with the Tayeh iron mines on the Yangtze to take annually for fifteen years 36,000 tons of pig iron and 56,000 tons of iron ore.

Feeding the Builders

Feeding the army of Panama canal builders is a matter of tremendous expense and, to keep tab on the money the government makes a record of wonderful detail that shows the cost per meal per man. It is shown by the annual report of the Isthmian canal commission that there are in operation nineteen hotels, nineteen European laborers messes and twenty common laborers kitchens.

The total number of meals served at commission hotels was [illegible]176,1[illegible]. The cost of supplies was [illegible].57 cents and of expense 6 [illegible] cents a meal, a total of a little over thirty-one cents.

The meals served in the European laborers messes made a total of 1,0[illegible]187 which cost 6.81 cents [illegible] supplies and expenses. The [illegible] common laborers kitchens [illegible] $1.46 and [illegible] 2,09 [illegible]

[illegible] 178 [illegible] 140.

The average weight of the [illegible] daily [illegible] the [illegible] 441 [illegible] weight of [illegible] the [illegible] exactly [illegible] United States [illegible] the [illegible] furnished the negro [illegible] East St [illegible] 168 [illegible] and [illegible] on the laborers kitchen [illegible] 2.11.

People Are Happy

Happy and prosperous [illegible] is the annual report [illegible] inhabitants [illegible] Porto Rico [illegible] Colton governor of the island. [illegible] There [illegible] 1,000,000 [illegible] island and the total [illegible] per capita [illegible] total products [illegible] that would [illegible] country was [illegible] of [illegible] New York State [illegible] tized [illegible] which must [illegible] ing con[illegible] New York [illegible] also large in [illegible] manufacture of cigars, [illegible] trade with the [illegible] could reduce [illegible] below the expenses of government [illegible] is happily [illegible] gain [illegible] the death rate [illegible] twenty-two [illegible] of population which is [illegible] Porto Rico. The average [illegible] and in 1901 [illegible] was forty per thousand.

During the [illegible] treatment [illegible] given to 1,040 [illegible] complete [illegible] improved in health and [illegible] returned [illegible] mountain where [illegible] difficult to send and there [illegible] still [illegible] hookworm.

Instruction in agriculture has been welcomed with enthusiasm by the people and will have a great influence in bettering conditions in the island. The number of school children enrolled last year was 121,4[illegible]. When the United States took possession of the island in 1899 there were 2,759 children in schools. Last year the children in eighty nine per cent of the schools were taught wholly in English. The studies differ little from those in the better schools of the United States.

To Pay Own Expenses

A horse marine who takes part in a ninety mile test ride prescribed by presidential order must provide a steed at his own expense. Such is a decision rendered in a contested case by the comptroller of the treasury. A colonel in the marine corps after making the ride, collected $1[illegible] in his expense account. The item was disallowed and the colonel was requested in military language to refund. He replied politely that in his opinion the law provided that the government should pay the horse bill and therefore he wished to be excused from yielding up $15. The money was then deducted from his pay. The colonel appealed to the comptroller and in due time was informed that the bill was properly charged against him. He was informed that officers above the rank of captain are not entitled to be furnished with horses, forage and equipment at the expense of the United States for the ninety mile ride. The use of the horse was declared to be entirely for the benefit of the colonel and he was held to be liable for the expense.

Favorable Report

The department of agriculture reports that the month of September was favorable for crops in general, taking the United States as a whole, an improvement during the month of about one per cent being shown whereas there usually is an average decline in September of 0.8 per cent. Aggregate crop conditions in the United States on October 1, or the time of harvest were about 1.8 per cent higher than on the corresponding date a year ago and 0.4 per cent lower than the average condition on October 1 or at time of harvest of the past ten years. The area under cultivation is 2 per cent more than last year.

The Usury Evil

In several American cities attempts are being made to eradicate the usury evil of loan sharks and pawn shops by the establishment of low interest loan societies conducted simply to meet their operating expenses. A band of philanthropists in Chicago Illinois with apparent success has established a pawn society which loans money upon pledges at one per cent per month as compared with the usual charge in that city by private brokers of ten per cent per month. The idea in this country is [illegible] the municipal pawn [illegible] of [illegible] European cities.

An account of [illegible] is [illegible] in a report [illegible] by Consul [illegible] H Morgan. It is the municipal [illegible] of Amsterdam, Holland [illegible] Bank van Leening [illegible] probably the oldest [illegible] in existence. It was started [illegible] part of the seventeenth century. The earliest record [illegible] the institution was A[illegible] 2[illegible]. The business is still conducted in the original building erected [illegible] at that time though later branch offices have been opened throughout the city to meet the [illegible] demands of the business.

To show the [illegible] with the [illegible] shop [illegible] long contact with this venerable institution has bred in Hollanders Consul Morgan states that it is the custom of a vast number of the poorer people of Amsterdam to pawn their Sunday best clothes on Monday morning, redeem them Saturday night and soak them again on the following Monday morning thus securing their use for the Sunday outing. Over forty per cent of the [illegible] of the Bank van Leening, which amounts yearly to over a million dollars, is of pledges of this class, household articles etc.

Municipal Affair

The rates of interest charged run according to the kind of goods pawned from six to thirteen per cent per annum. Amsterdam has never placed a single law upon its statute books regulating the interest charges of pawn shops simply because the competition of the municipal society has practically run them out of business. Besides the interest charges there is a fee demanded on all pledges to meet the administrative expenses of the institution. This is only from $.004 to $.10 an article. Yet from these sources of income and from the sale of unredeemed pledges and rents for offices in the bank building, the Bank van Leening insures every article which it holds in pawn, pensions all old employees and their widows and clears three per cent on its investment.

Each pledge is held for six months and then, failing its redemption by the owners is sold at public auction after being advertised for two days. The capital of the bank is $202,8[illegible]0. Its annual revenue is about $80,000 a year. It contributes $6,000 a year to its pension fund.

The Bank van Leening is strictly a municipal affair the business being conducted by five directors appointed by the city government and by the burgomaster or mayor. By its charter it is restricted in earnings to three per cent net on its investment and each three years its schedule of charges is made over so that the estimated income will amount to only the three per cent.

The institution is under strict police supervision and this has made the business of fencing or handling stolen goods very dangerous in Holland as at best it is difficult for other pawn shops to show legitimate reasons for remaining in this business.

In Supreme Court.

Although there is supposed to be no break in the continuity of the traditions of the supreme court of the United States there was a feeling among the older practitioners that an old order had passed and a new one was beginning when the bailiff's gavel fell for the opening of this year's session. Justice Hughes fresh from the turmoil of political life donned his judicial robe and hedged himself about so to speak with the old customs which are designed to shield the members of the highest tribunal from the annoyances of a contact of ordinary activity. At the same time Senior Associate Justice Harlan rugged and imperturbable despite his years assumed for a time at least the rule of Chief Justice.

Curiosity waxed [illegible] admission of Justice Hughes [illegible] supreme bench. He [illegible] many [illegible] knights [illegible] passing into [illegible] judicial domain where deliberation and quiet [illegible] in marked contrast [illegible] turmoil of his late occupation. It is [illegible] admitted that [illegible] plays [illegible] part in the work of a justice of the supreme bench [illegible] not possible [illegible] older [illegible] are feeling [illegible] that Justice Hughes will carry with him some [illegible] of his former career which [illegible] minutes themselves in his attitude towards questions of public [illegible] which cannot be answered at all times according to fixed precedents and principles of law.

Justice Hughes [illegible] easily into his [illegible] place [illegible] the moment he arose to take the oath of his office it was apparent that temperamentally at least, he was well equipped to play the high part to which he had been assigned by President Taft. The nervousness that usually marks the [illegible] of a new justice was not apparent in his case. He read his oath calmly and in a subdued voice giving the impression that there was less of mere formality and more of conviction about the ceremony [illegible] has come to be looked for in [illegible] of the kind.

Striking Appearance.

On the bench too he presents a striking appearance. There is probably more or a sympathetic look about his eyes [illegible] which will doubtless attract the younger attorneys who [illegible] something of an ordeal to face the court. At the same time his face bears the unmistakable lines of the strenuous days he has put behind him and might very well surmise from a glance at him in his place on the bench that there will be no hesitancy in making a decision that might cause a country wide upheaval if his sense of justice led him to that conclusion.

There is no doubt that he is possessed of [illegible] and it is to be expected that these characteristics will manifest themselves within the limits of that rigorous judicial propriety which one instinctively associates with the supreme court.

To those familiar with the practices of the court, in an intimate fashion the assumption of the role of chief justice by Justice Harlan is no less an [illegible]. Justice Harlan differs temperamentally from the late chief justice who swathed himself in the dignity with which the tribunal is surrounded. Justice Harlan is no less dignified, but in his case the dignity strikes one as being incidental and entirely subservient to the rugged, forceful character which directs the proceedings, without leaning upon the court traditions for aid.

Harlan's Calmness.

This was seen on the second day of the present term when the court transacted its first business. The presiding justice lifted the attorneys who crowded the court-room out of the pitfalls into which they stumbled and [illegible] them aright in a matter-of-fact but most effective way. He [illegible] pressed those whose nervousness led them to impulsive mistakes, and set the whole machinery of the court working with an admirable smoothness.

Although Justice Harlan never rises above the point of judicial calm the crack of a whip could not have been more stimulating than his orders. This was manifest when one of the older attorneys in a moment of laxity, sat upon the arm of a chair. The presiding justice darted a rather eagle-like look in his direction and said:

[illegible] gentleman will get off the arm of the chair and take a seat.

Never [illegible] ever moved more nimbly to obey a direction. Before the command had been [illegible] almost, the lawyer was in [illegible]

[illegible] attention attached to the personality of the two men who are to fill the vacancies on the bench. If they resemble either Justice Hughes or Presiding Justice Harlan there will be ample basis for [illegible] that the important [illegible] will not suffer in dignity.

Clarence C Miller Must Pay Heavy Alimony.

JUDGE SCOFIELD RENDERS DECREE

Mrs Miller Charges a Number of Violations of the Marital Contract. Mother of a Son Who Is Now of Legal Age—Some Notes of the Common Pleas Court.

Dora M Miller was granted a divorce from Clarence C Miller by Judge W E Scofield Wednesday. The plaintiff's petition set up that she was married to the defendant January 11, 1882 and that one son, now of age, was born of the union. She stated that the defendant was guilty of gross neglect, abused her and passed weeks without speaking to her. About five years ago, the defendant went to Tucson Arizona, and the plaintiff joined him there, but their life was disagreeable and she returned to Marion, which she claimed was their legal residence March 20, 1910. The plaintiff was compelled to travel home on a pass furnished her by the superintendent of the Southern Pacific railway.

Judge Scofield granted the divorce on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and awarded the plaintiff $2,200 alimony, payable $200 down and the balance at the rate of $30 a month. Judgment for costs was given against the defendant.

In the suit of Klein brothers, a partnership against Frank Sebok and others demurrers were filed in the common pleas court, Wednesday by C C Fisher, attorney for the plaintiffs to the answer of the defendants setting up that it was insufficient in law. The demurrers were filed against Frank Sebok, Steve Vargo and Esther Sebok.

RECEPTION GIVEN FOR PASTOR AND FAMILY

United Brethren Church Scene of a Gathering.

EVENING PASSED IN DELIGHTFUL MANNER

Rev. J. W. Miles Is Welcomed Back to the Work of the Church and Is Handsomely Remembered by Members of His Congregation. Addresses of Interest Delivered

Over 250 attended the reception given at the United Brethren church, Tuesday evening, for Rev J W Miles and his family. The church auditorium and Sunday-school room were attractively decorated with autumn leaves, bitter-sweet and bouquets of carnations and chrysanthemums.

The program in charge of William Coler, was opened with devotional exercises and the singing of hymns. Rev S C Bates secretary of the Ministerial association, led in prayer after which Mr and Mrs George Wood and their three little sons gave two splendid selections, using the piano, violin, cornet and trombone.

After another hymn, Rev G P Barnard, of the Free Baptist church gave the address of the evening. He spoke of the lessening of the denominational lines in this world and the increase of the brotherhood in the kingdom. He put special emphasis on the attendance at the prayer meetings and said that it is the work of the members to fill the church pews and of the pastor to fill the pulpit. All should work together for the betterment of the church. In behalf of the Ministerial association and of the church he welcomed Rev Mr Miles back to Marion for the coming year.

J W Rollands in behalf of the church, presented Rev Mr Miles a handsome umbrella. It being his birthday he was presented a number of other gifts by members of the congregation.

Rev Mr Miles responded to the presentation speech with a few words of thanks and later in the evening gave a few remarks, in which he said this was the best pastorate he had ever had charge of and he thought much of his success was due to the faithful work of his parishioners.

Rev Mr Barnard dismissed the audience and a social hour was enjoyed in the Sunday-school room and refreshments were served at small tables.

Terse Comments Upon the Christian Endeavor Topic for October 23, "The Chances We Miss" Gallatians 6 1-10

Every time we do a deed of love in the name of Jesus we take a step toward Him

When God asks of us a deed is it not foolish as well as faithless to offer him instead only an excuse? Excuses are no substitutes for actions. Not all the excuses in the world can fill the place of a duty well done. When we present ourselves before the Lord it should be with arms full of sheaves of labor not of sheaves of excuses

* * *

Duties enlarge in the doing. By way of small duties we rise to the greater; this is the natural law of progress. Only they who are faithful in the least are appointed to have charge over the most

* * *

The daring do. Capacity is largely a matter of confidence. The plane of a person's labors and success is largely determined by his own assurance. Some young men attempt great things—think in large terms—launch great ventures. Others of equal native abilities moor their life crafts in the quiet eddies where there is no danger from rocks or cataracts or treacherous currents. The first may make the whole world their debtors; the second usually manage to make a meagre living for themselves, their unused powers gradually sloughing off until they reach the state of confirmed smallness and inefficiency. It is courage that conquers

Real success comes only by fulfilling the divine purpose for the individual life

* * *

Cannon Farrar said: "There is only one real failure in life possible and that is not to be true to the best one knows"

* * *

God means that in every life there should be place for each of his gifts to us and place for the development of all our possibilities. If our life is dwarfed and starved and onesided the fault is not God's but ours. He has provided time and means; we have neglected one or both

* * *

The other day I had occasion to meet within the hour two men. The first was cold selfish material. I left him with a feeling that virtue had gone out of me. I was not so strong or so peaceful as I had been a few minutes before. Then I called upon a friend who is one of God's noblemen. It was like entering the tonic atmosphere of the Colorado uplands. New enthusiasm new confidence in myself and my fellows new zeal for the best things was imparted to me by that fifteen-minute interview. Neither of these men thought for an instant of the influence he was exerting upon his visitor; it was the man's personality unconsciously speaking forth. Yet in similar fashion for good or ill each one of us is affecting every person whose life touches his

There is no gift or grace that goes further toward making one beloved than the art of simple kindness. [illegible] kind in [illegible] and word and deed is the shortest [illegible] road to power over other lives. It is better to be kind than brilliant; one brings affection and loyalty, the other usually brings in its train only envy and bitterness. This adornment of simple kindness is one within reach of everybody. There is no person so untalented as to be incapable of habitual kindness. This grace is one that grows in any soil and beneath clouds or sunshine snow or rain. It has taken centuries for man to grow into anything like an adequate appreciation of the wonderful excellencies of Jesus but the humblest peasant by the Lake of Galilee or upon the hills of Judea could instantly discern and understand His simple kindness, for kindness is the universal language

A sceptic was railing in a public park against the gospel the church the ministry and Christianity. He [illegible] ted and [illegible] d and ridiculed with such cleverness that he carried the unthinking with him in uproarious approval. In that crowd stood an intelligent [illegible] Christian gifted in public speech and confident of his ability to show the shallowness and falsity and absurdity of the [illegible] sophistries but he failed to do so. He did not care [illegible] perhaps in shrinking was sheer cowardice. At any rate he has long carried with him the [illegible] of failure [illegible] that opportunity to prove himself a soldier on service and to speak a good word for Jesus Christ. SIGNS OF MONOMANIA.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

One of the meanest and most nonsensical insinuations in the Harmon campaign has been the governor's production of letters showing that Harding wrote when a private citizen asking that state funds be deposited in a Marion bank State funds were deposited in perfectly legal and proper manner in hundreds of banks all over the state Why not in Marion? What was to hinder Harding a private citizen from writing a personal letter to the state treasurer speaking a good word for his home bank and requesting that it be given a portion of the business which it was the province of the state treasurer to place

Harmon seems to be going on the theory that because a Republican state treasurer now dead made illegal deposits of money in some cases that there is a taint connected with all of the state deposits Apparently he is going on the theory that any one who had even the remotest party relations with the state treasury during that period was a crook and grafter Even a private citizen who preferred a simple request on behalf of the bank in his home town asking for a perfectly legitimate apportionment of the state deposits is contaminated by the mere act of writing a letter to McKinnon

If Harmon wants to put a rapid anticlimax on all of his campaign against graft and discredit the good with the bad, he is taking just the course calculated to bring it about He has carried his tirade to the point where he imagines graft in every transaction and sees a grafter in every public servant unless the latter happens to be a Democrat when he grows most woefully blind —Akron Beacon-Journal

THEY KNEW THAT BAD ROAD

Mark Twain Tells How Three Natives Dodged Task of Hauling Stage Through Mud.

Mark Twain was a firm believer in the national movement for good roads and had many a tale to tell about the incredibly bad roads of some sections A Hartford man recalled the other day this experience of the famous humorists "I once had 30 miles"—so Mark Twain began—"to go by stage in Mississippi The roads were terrible, for it was early spring The passengers consisted of five men and three women—three large well developed women swathed in shawls and veils, who kept to themselves, talking in low tones on the rear seat Well, we hadn't gone a mile before the stage got stuck two feet deep in the black mud Down jumped every man of us, and for ten minutes we tugged and jerked and pulled till we got the stage out of the hole We had hardly got our breath back when the stage stuck again, and again we had to strain our hearts out to release her In covering 15 miles we got stuck eight times, and in going the whole 30 we lifted that old stage out of the mud 17 times by actual count We five male passengers were wet, tired and filthy when we reached our destination, and so you can imagine our feeling when we saw the three women passengers remove as they dismounted their veils their shawls and their skirts and lo and behold! they were three big hearty robust men As we stared at them with bulging and ferocious eyes, one of them said 'Thanks for your labor, gents We knowed this road and prepared for it Will you licker?'"

Brown Took No Chances

In a Scottish village a farm laborer named Bill Brown lost his wife Whilst on her deathbed she implored him to never marry again after she was gone, furthermore should he do so she would scratch through the ground and come back to punish him The threat apparently had due effects for some months the widower rejecting many tempting offers After a time however the village got to whispering about Bill being seen walking with a certain lass Met one day by a relative of the wife he asked if there was any truth in the rumor that was about the village, to which he replied in the affirmative

'Are ye no afraid of poor Mary's threat?' queried the relative

"Nae fear o' that my lad I took good care to bury her berrit face downwards so the mair she scratches the farther she'll gang doon"

POLITICAL GATHERING IS HELD AT RICHWOOD

CARPE DIEM CLUB AT LONG RESIDENCE

A Pleasing Program Is Enjoyed by the Members—The Future Work of the Club Is Discussed and Business Matters Are Given Attention.

Richwood, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Republican campaign in Union county was opened in Richwood, Wednesday evening, a large and enthusiastic crowd participating. The rally proved a decided success. The Richwood school band gave a concert on the streets, the crowd afterward repairing to the opera-house, where the orators of the evening were warmly received. Rev John Wesley Hill, of Brooklyn, New York, spoke on general issues and greatly pleased his hearers, this being his first appearance before a Union county audience. Ralph D. Cole, of Findlay, who has been heard here before, devoted his time to the tariff question and was able to give the voters much information. He warmly praised his successful opponent, F. B. Willis, who was one of the speakers of the evening. The latter confined his remarks to general issues. The rally Wednesday evening is the only one scheduled for northern Union county. Meetings in other parts of the county will be held in Milford Center, October 18; Marysville, October 22; York, October 29. A symposium, "New Thoughts—New Ideas," was led by Mrs. W H Lyons and her remarks covered a wide field. Nearly every member of the club advanced some suggestion relating to future work by the club and some valuable hints were brought out. Republican Candidate for Board of Public ᵘorks

GEORGE H. WATKINS.

George H. Watkins, Republican candidate for member of the state board of public works, son of John H. and Jane Smith Watkins, was born at Piketon, Scioto county, Ohio, October 17, 1858; was educated in the common schools at Waverly, Ohio, but left school at the age of fifteen years to take a position as clerk in a general merchandise store at Bear Creek, Scioto county, and so well did he discharge his duties that C F Lauman placed him in complete charge of his store at Clifford, Ohio, although he was but nineteen years of age. In 1886 he entered into a partnership with Mr. Lauman to conduct a general merchandise business at Wakefield, Ohio, under the firm name of Lauman & Watkins. The business proved quite successful and the partnership continued until Mr. Watkins took his place as a member of the board of public works, in 1904, since which time he has given his entire time in an effort to rebuild the canals of the state.

Republican Candidate for Governor of Ohio

HON. WARREN G. HARDING, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR, SAYS:

Our party is a progressive political army.

Nobody is standing pat if that means still

Nobody ever associates the Democratic party with the question of progress.

The Republican party has not obstructed, it has constructed. It has not pretended, it has performed.

Constructive Republicanism offers the most and does the best for the state and nation.

The wholesome awakening of the restored country by Theodore Roosevelt was Republican just as the honest continuation and consecration of William H. Taft is Republican.

Don't abolish our time tried bipartisan management of state institutions.

I preach economy and mean to demand it, but favor no stingineses with helpless wards.

The thieves and grafters who cloaked themselves in Republican or in Democratic respectability were traitors to party and people.

The public weal demands adjustment by arbitration in disputes of public service corporations.

Think Too Much of Weather.

The truth seems to be that we are an impatient people and that we devote entirely too much of our time thinking and talking about the weather instead of absorbing ourselves in other things over which we have some control. We were far wiser to follow the example of Riley's contented farmer—"When the Lord sends rain, why rain's my choice."

A pair of scissors is infinitely better for trimming off the rind from ham or bacon than a knife.

LOOKING TO THE END.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for October 23 Is a Quarterly Review.

Life has many tragedies, and one of them is the partings which, sooner or later, every friend and family must face. These are experiences which sound the depths of life. The streaming eyes which we sometimes see at railway stations and steamship wharves are fully intelligible only to those who have either thus, or at the deathbed, severed tender ties. The preparatory experiences, wherein the father or mother led the dear ones up to an understanding of what was involved in the separation and fortified them for the days to come, are known only to the experienced. Yet it is all mirrored in these final scenes in the life of Jesus.

Visitors to Oberammergan say that the most affecting scenes of the Passion Play, next to the crucifixion itself, were the partings between Jesus and His mother and friends. He had come to the last stages of His earthly experiences, as the Sunday-schools have studied during the past quarter. He seems to have been chiefly concerned with preparing His friends for the end which He saw so clearly, and for the separation from His visible presence which would follow He told them during those soul-trying days in the north country, of what was to come. It was then that Peter's flash of comprehension, and his fearless confession, comforted the heart of the suffering Teacher.

For Jesus was suffering, even as in Gethsemane. But He suffered nobly. There are two kinds of suffering, one regal and the other craven. Abdul Hamid, as he whimpers and complains in his Salonica exile, smoking countless cigarettes through the long days and sleepless nights, is an image of craven suffering. Jesus and the other martyrs of righteousness, bearing a great ordeal as those who know themselves to be inheritors of truth's eternal years, furnish the contrast. What men may do in divine endurance of untoward and undeserved adversity, Jesus has shown

Foregleams of Glory.

Like the golden sunset over the Bosphorous, which bathes squalid Constantinople in celestial glory, so there come to even the most commonplace life experiences and visions of hope. Jesus had such in the transfiguration. This transcendent hour strengthened His heart and the hearts of His disciples for the dark days ahead. All of the events of our todays and our yesterdays should prepare us for our tomorrows. It is true that we should live "a day at a time," but always in the light and power of the days that are gone The Mount of Transfiguration was God's preparation for Mount Calvary. Yesterday always looks forward to today. A great love is the best equipment for the endurance of a great sorrow.

This anticipatory value of experiences should be a factor in character development. Just as the ancient crosses which are now showing through the Moslem frescoes in the Mosque of St. Sophia, Constantinople, hearten Christian believers in the conviction that this peerless Church is some day to be restored to its original use, so the crosses that peer through the experiences of life should prepare us for the heroic struggles and triumphs that lie ahead of us.

The New Law.

These final public ministries of Jesus which we now hold in review contain several profound deliverances respecting the new laws of His kingdom. First in answer to a query of active-minded Peter, He enunciated the new principle of forgiveness. The Old Testament, like the later Koran, says to smite enemies: Jesus says to forgive them This is a new principle at work in the world It is essential to the universal brotherhood to which Jesus looked forward. Only this can bind nations and individuals together. As certain Arabs are known by gashes on their face, so Christians are to be known by their readiness to forgive His enemies tried to entangle the Master in some sophistries concerning divorce. He dared to announce, what His disciples today should be equally rigorous in affirming, that divorce, except for infidelity, is wrong and not permissible This means a new change in the social order, an enhanced sanctity of the family, and a permanency in the status of woman which has proved revolutionary.

Again, following hard on this, Jesus uttered that beautiful truth which is as Christianity's crown upon the brow of childhood: "Suffer the little children, and forbid them not to come unto Me; for to such belongeth the kingdom of heaven." The latest legislation on the question of child labor has not yet got beyond the platform of Jesus.

The capitalist question, a labor question, and a question of religious politics--the ambition of Zebedee's sons intruded themselves into the notice of the Master, who never shirked practical problems in His contemplation of high ideals He solved them all by the pronouncement of new principles, which are as applicable today as then; and admittedly the best of solutions for the welfare of the mass as well as of the individual. The recent multiplication of volumes upon the social teachings of Jesus would seem to show that His laws are coming into their own.

A Hero and His Heroism.

No life is made up of detached incidents; all form a whole, with essential relations of the parts. The triumphal entry of Jesus into Jerusalem is often contrasted with His journey forth, bearing a cross, to His death outside the wall The truth is, they were in vital sequence. One followed the other as effect follows cause For it was this triumphal entry, and the cleansing of the temple which immediately followed it, that brought to a climax, the plottings of His foes He thereby denied the ecclesiastical power of His day, and He also attacked powerful vested interests in interfering with the temple revenue

The "safe" leader in religion is he who confines himself to denunciation of Islam and heathendom and the moral and religious shortcomings of Spain or Italy or South America. He may wax eloquent over the evils of the dance, the theatre, card-playing, tobacco and liquor Everybody applauds his eloquence, zeal and religious integrity so long as he attacks only these things. But let him once venture, as Jesus did, to arraign the perverted religious organizations of his day, and the far ramifying business corruptions, and he will find himself possessed of the luxury of formidable enemies in short order. None the less, the man who means to follow Jesus may not stop short of cleansing the temple of the Most High. To purify the church is the most direct method of ameliorating the condition of the world

The Grand Assize.

The comfortable and easy-going habit of our day is to disregard a hereafter. We hear little about heaven, and less about hell The issue of the final estate of man is generally dodged. In happy-go-lucky fashion we trust the future to take care of itself. None the less, in this review we are confronted by the fact that five of the quarter's lessons have to do with the teachings of Jesus in respect to the last judgment and the eternal life.

Cut out of the scheme of Christianity the conception of a future state, wherein all of earth's iniquities are made right, and the whole fabric collapses If there is no other judiciary than we know in organized human society, then the tears of the defrauded widow, the wailings of hungry children, the groanings of of myriads of oppressed and imprisoned, the anguish of the defrauded weak, all cry out in indictment of the whole vast scheme of things. The history of mankind is an inexplicable riddle unless wrongs are to be made right, and rewards and punishments to be apportioned justly, somehow and somewhere. Jesus plainly taught, "line upon line and precept upon precept" that there is a day of reckoning The Great Judge would be less than just and omnipotent if He did not hold a final assize. The truth is a necessary comfort and admonition to humanity.

Swedenborg's Versatility.

Perhaps even the devout Swedenborgian is not aware of the versatility of his hero and that he added to mysticism an all-round scientific equipment. When Charles XII., for instance, was in difficulty as to the transport for a siege in the dead of winter it was Swedenborg who constructed a 16-mile-long canal through mountains and over valleys for the conveyance of the necessary implements of war; it was he who gave to Sweden a better method of fixing the value of money; it was he who, as assessor of mines, studied the smelting works of Europe and put his countrymen in the way of eclipsing their methods.

Republican Candidate for State School Commissioner

JOHN W. ZELLER.

Mr. Zeller was renominated for a second term without opposition. Born of German parentage on a farm in Hancock county, he received the advantages of such an education as the schools and colleges of that time afforded. He early became a teacher in the rural schools, and passed from these schools to the village and city schools, his last position being that of superintendent of the Findlay public schools, which position he held for thirty-two consecutive years. He severed his relations with the Findlay schools only six weeks before he assumed the duties of this high and responsible office. Having devoted forty years of his life to school work, touching every phase and every class of our schools, not only in Northwestern Ohio, but in all sections of the state, Mr. Zeller came to the office with a knowledge of the conditions and needs of the schools which has enabled him to take hold at once of the much needed work of the office. That the office has accomplished something worth while in the first year of his work is the declaration of teachers and others competent to judge Mr Zeller is aiming to make the office much more than a bureau of statistics He feels that it should become a greater force for the uplift and improvement of all the schools, and especially the rural and village schools, and to this end he has directed most of his time and energy. He and his assistants have visited four hundred schools and have made that many addresses on education during the first year In addition, Mr Zeller, alone, has visited and addressed forty-five county institutes, and has held numerous conferences with young superintendents in fifty counties of the state.

Home Course In Tree Preservation

By JOHN DAVEY.
Father of Tree Surgery.

I.—Keeping Trees Healthy.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

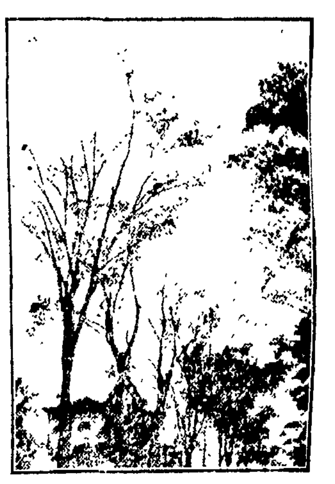
IN Scripture we read of "the trees of the Lord," and, lo, one of them is here before you, caught by the camera. (See illustration No. 1.) What an embodiment of innocence! How majestic! How "fearfully and wonderfully made!" What a friend of man! How it has stood and wrestled with the storms! There it stands a living tree aye, a noble creature! Behold those plume-like branches! No two branches alike, no two twigs the same and no two leaves of exactly the same pattern. Lift the graceful branchlet reverently; thoughtfully pluck a leaf; study that wonderful organ; examine its petiole (the leaf stock).

NO. 1.—"BEHOLD THOSE PLUME-LIKE BRANCHES."

Under the microscope the protoplasmic cells are seen to be constructed with just as much inherent intelligence as in the hand or any part of the human body. The petiole, for example, instead of being made of overlapping cells, is made up of spiral cells much like the wire coil spring that pulls the screen door shut. Then trace out the veins, veinlets and veinulets and see how wonderful it is all filled in with the parenchyma, and then with the microscope look upon that strange but beautiful arrangement for breathing, the stomata.

The tree that we talk about—that is, the part that we see, consisting of trunk, branches and leaves—is in reality not the important part. This is the visible portion, of course, and is beautiful or otherwise according to the condition of the invisible parts, the roots.

There are just three places where we find healthy trees—first, in the natural woodlands; second, in the open, cultivated field. That is where this beautiful rock maple is situated. Note the furrows, as the recent plowing has been done, and, third, in the graveyard, or cemetery, where the roots feed on the human bodies. In the natural woodland there is root protection from the mulching given by the decaying leaves. Through this mulching the air and water both penetrate and feed the roots and keep them active. In the cultivated field the same takes place by means of the farmer's constant plowing, cultivating and stirring the soil, and in the cemetery the digging of graves and burial of bodies stirs the soil and furnishes the food supply from the bodies that are interred.



NO. 2—DESTROYED BY HEAVY SOD OVER ROOTS.

To me this is a pleasant thought, that this body shall "rise again" and live as a shelter for the dear birds. From these three lessons and a few others incidentally we have one of the most important lessons in tree growing—namely, the top of your tree, or the visible portions, can be no better than the invisible parts, the roots.

This fact is presented to you wherever you go and is exemplified by illustration No. 2. This is from a photograph taken July 3. No. 1 was taken the 4th of the same month.

The cause of the destruction of those in No. 2 was the formation of a heavy sod over their roots. Unpleasant as it is, we must recognize the fact that we cannot have a good tree and a good sod at the same time. There are artificial ways of compromising at times, but the simplest way is to throw a rope around the tree and draw a circle, destroy all sod inside the line and keep cultivating and give plenty of water during the hot months of July and August. The circle may be a foot from the trunk for small trees out to as far as six feet in large ones.

The grand jury for the October term [illegible] instructed by Judge W F Scofield. I C Dickson of Tully township was appointed foreman. The judge concluded his instructions shortly [illegible] and the jury was taken into the grand jury room. Charles Williams of Green Camp and [illegible] Montgomery of Big Island were excused from [illegible] and their places were filled by Charles [illegible] and Charles Gilbert. The other members are Carl [illegible] Prospect; C [illegible] Rinker, Claridon south; Joseph Voll, First ward; Thomas Clary, Second ward; Henry [illegible], Third ward; [illegible] Fourth ward; [illegible] Green Camp; [illegible] Jones, Third ward; Frank Zachman, Waldo township; William Fust, Pleasant township; I C Dickson, Tully township; Michael Engelh[illegible], Second ward; Christian Kramer, Richland township; Frank G Fish, Claridon north.

Through his attorney, Fred W Warner, Charles M Powers filed a petition in the common pleas court Saturday afternoon asking for a divorce from May Powers. He relates in his petition that they were married at Cardington January 30, 1901 and that as a result of the union they have two children aged three and five years.

The plaintiff relates that he has been a faithful husband while the defendant has been guilty of gross neglect, has devoted her attention to other men since last June and left the children alone, failing to attend to her household duties or prepare the meals. He states that October 1 of the present year the defendant struck him on the head without cause while he was trying to compromise and effect a reconciliation with her. She then had him arrested and taken to the city jail on a charge of assault which she failed to prove. October 7 she took the two children and deserted him, going to the home of her father in Morrow county.

The plaintiff asks for a divorce, the custody of the children and that the defendant be barred from any and all claims in his property.

After thirteen years Ella V Bailey has tired of her married life and through her attorney, [illegible] Sievers, filed a petition in the common pleas court Saturday for a divorce from her husband Augustus Watt Bailey. The petition relates that they were married at Parkersburg, West Virginia, August 11 18[illegible] and that four children ranging in age from three to eleven years are the result of the union, the eldest, a boy, being in the custody of the defendant. The plaintiff sets up that the defendant has been absent for the past three years and has been guilty of gross neglect as a husband and father. She further relates that he abandoned her without cause after squandering the property of the plaintiff in the use of intoxicants and that she has been compelled to keep herself. She alleges that the defendant has been an habitual drunkard for ten years or more and frequently assaulted her. She prays for a divorce, custody of all the children, that the defendant be charged with the maintenance of the children and she be allowed alimony and other proper relief.

Through her attorney, [illegible] Myers, Kathryn Borland filed a petition in the common pleas court last Saturday asking for a divorce from [illegible] Borland. The plaintiff relates that she has been a faithful wife while the defendant has been guilty of extreme cruelty [illegible] and miserly in his actions toward her. She states that while under the influence of intoxicants he drove her from the house frequently, struck her and on a certain occasion knocked her unconscious. BODY OF AN UNKNOWN MAN FOUND ON BIG FOUR

Two Miles East of Caledonia by a Train Crew

REMAINS ARE FOUND SATURDAY MORNING

Body Is Believed To Be That of L Kirby, of Muncie Indiana—Remains are Terribly Mangled—A Torn Notebook Is the Only Means of Establishing Victim's Identity

Caledonia Oct 15 [Special]—The body of a man thought to be L Kirby of Muncie Indiana was found along the tracks of the Big Four railroad two miles east of here at the Drollsbaugh crossing, this morning about 6 30 o'clock by the train crew of a Big Four freight train.

Section men who were notified together with William Rinker a local undertaker went to the scene and brought the torn and mangled form here and an effort is being made today to ascertain its identity. The body was terribly mangled and was almost unrecognizable. The left leg and arm were cut entirely off and the face was very badly lacerated. Severe bruises were suffered over the body and it appears from the injuries that the unfortunate man was riding a freight when he fell and was ground beneath the wheels. He had been lying along the tracks for several hours.

In one of the pockets in the man's clothing, a torn notebook was found bearing the name L Kirby of Muncie and it is thought from this that he came from there and was enroute home perhaps at the time of the accident. Only one shoe was found and this was covered with plaster and lime giving rise to the belief that the victim was a plasterer. A tattoo mark on the right arm bears the date 1897.
